“To grunt and sweat under a weary life,
But that the dread of something after death,—
The undiscover’d country, from whose bourne
No traveler returns,—puzzles the will,
And makes us rather bear those ills we have Than fly to others that we know not of?”
(Hamlet, III, 1)

“... tell me—when a man dies, and his speech disappears into fire, his breath into the wind, his sight into the sun, his mind into the moon, his hearing into the quarters, his physical body into the earth, his self into space, the hair of his body into plants, the hair of his head into trees, and his blood and semen into water—what then happens to that person?”
(Bṛhadāranyaka Upaniṣad 3.2.13)

(Thomas Edison)

OH WOW. OH WOW. OH WOW.
(Steve Jobs’ final words)

“The cradle rocks above an abyss, and common sense tells us that our existence is but a brief crack of light between two eternities of darkness. Although the two are identical twins, man, as a rule, views the prenatal abyss with more calm than the one he is heading for (at some forty-five hundred heartbeats an hour).”

CATALOGUE DESCRIPTION:

Prerequisite: Completion of G.E. Category C.2; CPRL 110 recommended. How selected religious traditions have sought to answer the question “What happens when I die?” Resurrection, reincarnation, immortality of the soul, heaven and hell will be discussed.
COURSE DESCRIPTION:
This course explores the teachings of various religious traditions regarding the question: “What happens when we die?” To answer this question, we will survey five major religious traditions (Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, and Buddhism), significant modern movements (Spiritualism, Theosophy, Swedenborg), selected Greek philosophers and selected non-Western ancient traditions (Egypt, Mesopotamia, Zoroastrianism).

A second question concerns the “substance,” usually identified as “soul,” that may experience life in the hereafter. Is it the same as the body, an integral part of the person, the “personality,” or none of these?

A third question involves the possibility of scientifically proving the existence of an afterlife. In recent years near-death and out-of-body experiences have convinced many that there is indeed an afterlife. Earlier, in the nineteenth century, Spiritualism provided methods of communicating with the spirits. Within this movement, a more scientific method of “cross-correspondences” was developed by Frederic W.H. Myers. Various mechanical means were also developed, such as the Ashkir-Jobson Trianion, the dynamistograph, the Vendermeulen spirit indicator, the electronic voice phenomenon, and even the telephone.

MISSION AND GOALS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF COMPARATIVE RELIGION:

A. Mission
To describe and interpret the developments, worldviews, and practices of religious traditions in a non-sectarian, academic manner for the benefit of students, faculty from other fields, and the greater Orange County community.

B. Goals
1. To offer classes in the world’s religions within the General Education framework and for majors and minors;
2. To teach in a scholarly and non-sectarian manner;
3. To conduct scholarly research that contributes to an understanding of the varieties of religious thought and experience;
4. To investigate in a scholarly manner the impact of the varieties of religious thought and experience on contemporary society.

STUDENT LEARNING GOALS FOR CPRL 375
Students will be expected:
1. To become acquainted with the attitudes of the afterlife in five world religions (Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, and Buddhism), Theosophy (as a comparative, syncretic movement), and Spiritualism (representing a major movement in nineteenth century U.S.).
2. To become acquainted with the overriding similarities in those religions which might be termed postaxial. For these religions, the agreement is the assumption and promise of a liberation from a less satisfactory life to an “existence” that is offers bliss, either in the literal or allegorical sense.
3. To become acquainted with the fundamental differences between certain postaxial religions regarding the afterlife. One important difference is the issue over the continuation of individuality, however interpreted, either in the body or through the soul.
4. To be aware of the naturally problematic issue of resurrection, its variations in interpretations, its implications, its anti-intuitive nature, and the difficulty in fitting the teaching into the natural scheme of things.
5. To be aware of the more palatable teaching of reincarnation in its many senses, and the case that can be made of the possibility that some form of reincarnation is entirely possible.

6. To be aware of the powerful and persuasive teaching of martyrdom in both Islam and Christianity and its centrality in both religions.

7. To understand that the quality of the afterlife (heaven[s], hell[s], limbo, purgatory) is measured by the ethical dimension.

8. To understand the causal relation of the present life with the afterlife (either spiritual or bodily). This includes the issue of karman- and whether this concept was originally associated with reincarnation or whether it is a scholarly and academic construct and interpretation that the two were originally related. Students will need to argue this in a critical and intelligent manner.

9. To make students aware of and to evaluate in a critical manner the scientistic proofs of the afterlife such as those surrounding the near-death experience and sophisticated arguments of the possibility from Oliver Lodge, F. W. Myers, and Raymond Moody.

10. To be aware that teachings about the afterlife and of religion present interesting possibilities that religion and science are not necessarily in disagreement.

GENERAL EDUCATION
This course fulfills GE C.3 Explorations in the Arts and Humanities. (if you wish to pursue a minor in Religious Studies, you can “double count” this course for GE and the minor—up to nine units of GE courses from one department may be used to meet minor requirements. If you are a major in Religious Studies this class counts as one course toward the “Experience of Religion” requirement, but cannot count for GE.)

Learning Goals:

General Education Learning Goals applied to this Course (UPS 411.201)

This course fulfills the learning goals of General Education Section C.3, which also includes the goals for area C.2, namely:

a. Cultivate their intellectual reasoning skills, expand their capacity for creative imagination, develop their reasonable moral sensibilities, and increase their capacity for sensitive engagement through studying great works of human imagination and reason (which are to be primarily—although not exclusively—written texts and literature).

b. Understand how the humanities have contributed to the development of culture, including the comparative study of the humanities in diverse cultures.

c. Understand how the humanities have sought to provide answers to complex problems facing humanity, including the relationship of the self to culture and the natural world, the nature of moral and legal obligations, and the meaning and purpose of human existence.

The specific goals for C.3 are as follows:

a. Understand broad, unifying themes from cross-disciplinary perspectives in the humanities.

b. Understand the relevance of the humanities for the thoughtful consideration of complex contemporary problems.

c. Appreciate the complex relationship and interaction between the humanities and other fields of learning, including the natural sciences, social sciences, and arts.
